

Leaving hospital

EasyRead version

Leaving hospital

When you feel better you can leave hospital. Staff use the word “discharge” when talking about people leaving hospital.

The doctors and nurses will talk to you every day about why you are in hospital and when they think you can leave.

If you are not sure when you are going to leave, ask the staff on the ward.

Help when you leave

Most people go home when they leave hospital. Some may go to other hospitals or to care homes.

People who go home from hospital may have help from carers, nurses or therapists.

Sometimes, new equipment may be put into your house to help you manage better at home.

If you are going to need extra help when you leave hospital you will meet a social worker, care manager or discharge planning nurse.

These people will talk to you about what help you may need.

It is a good idea to have food and basic supplies at home. Ask a carer or relative if they can help you.

If you need extra help, a free service called Welcome Home from Hospital can help.

They can visit you at home after you leave hospital.

If you want this help, please ask the staff.

Travel

When you leave hospital, it is best to ask family, friends or carers to pick you up.

Some people leave hospital in an ambulance.

The doctors and nurses will decide if you need this.

When you leave hospital

Make sure you have all your belongings from around your bed.

Collect anything valuable you may have put in the hospital safe. Staff can help you to collect your belongings.

When you leave the hospital the nurses will give you 2 things:

1. A letter about your stay in hospital.

2. Your medicines - the nurse will speak to you about these and help you understand what they are for and when you should take them.

Equipment

You might need to take some hospital equipment home like crutches, to help you walk.

You can borrow our equipment but we will need it back.

Please return any equipment when you have finished with it so we can use it to help other patients.

Seeing the doctor again

The doctor may want to see you again. If so, we will make an appointment before you leave or send you a letter by post.
